JUSTIFICATION

Including these concentrations on student transcripts will recognize the specialization areas that have been offered by the school for many years. They convey to potential employers a student's academic preparation for a particular field of practice, thus helping students compete for jobs in their specialty area. NASW, the professional association for social work, has increasingly been recognizing and licensing specialty areas of practice. Therefore, recognition of the proposed concentrations will convey to accrediting bodies, (e.g. NASW, ISBE for school social work) that a student's curriculum has prepared them to meet licensing and certification standards.

BUDGETARY AND STAFF IMPLICATIONS

There are minimal budgetary and staff implications because these concentrations are a well established part of the MSW program. The only anticipated impact will be on the School's record officer who will need to submit information to OAR in support of each student meeting requirements for their concentration. The School already maintains this information for each student in its MSW program files.

STATEMENT FOR THE PROGRAMS OF STUDY

Replace the following wording in the current Programs of Study:

“Students choose from one of the following areas of specialization: child welfare, health care, community mental health, or school social work. Within each specialization, a direct service or policy, planning, and administration focus may be pursued. Students who wish to specialize in aging, substance abuse, or another individualized plan of study have the opportunity to develop the area with a faculty adviser.”

“Students choose from one of the following concentrations: child welfare, health care, mental health, or school social work. With the exception of school social work, students may specialize in direct service or in policy, planning, and administration within their concentration. Students who wish to specialize in other substantive areas that are not sufficiently covered in one of the four concentrations have the opportunity to develop an individualized plan of study with a faculty adviser.”

EFFECTIVE DATE:        Fall, 2006

REVISED statement for the Programs of Study:

Master of Social Work

The master's degree provides specialized study for advanced social work practice. Students take foundation and advanced courses in social work methods, organization and services, research, human behavior and the social environment, and field instruction. A two-semester field placement in a social service agency is required. A total of 56 to 68 graduate hours of graduate coursework is required for the M.S.W. degree, and the curriculum may be completed in 16 to 24 months of full-time study.

Students choose from one of the following concentrations: child welfare, health care, mental health, or school social work. Each concentration consists of 56 hours of coursework; students without a BSW, or whose BSW is more than 7 years old or is not from an accredited school of social work, must take four foundation courses (for a total of 16 hours) in addition to the coursework required for each concentration. With the exception of school social work, students may specialize in direct service or in policy, planning, and administration within their concentration. Students who wish to specialize in other substantive areas that are not sufficiently covered in one of the four concentrations have the opportunity to develop an individualized plan of study with a faculty adviser.

The school also offers a joint degree (M.S./M.S.W.) in marriage and family service in collaboration with the Department of Human and Community Development.
